Here Are 22 Boys, Girls Who Would Like to "Go Home" for Christmas

More than any other season of the year, Christmas means "going home." From distant cities and even far lands children come home for Christmas. Home fires burn brightest at this season of the year.

At the Marion County Children's Home this Christmas there will be 22 boys and girls who will not "go home." It matters not how bright and cheery the Christmas at the Children's Home is made, how much effort Supt. Carl F. Digel and the kind-hearted men and women of the county put into making the Christmas at the Home a real affair, with presents and everything, it is not Christmas "at home." There is a difference.

Likewise there is a chance for someone with a liking for children, and a little of that sentiment that means giving a boy and girl a chance in life, to take one of these boys or girls and give them that chance. Not taking them just to give them a good time at Christmas, but to give them a good home.

THESE boys and girls at the Children's Home range from seven to 15 years old. They are at the age when putting them in a good home will mean more than anyone but themselves will ever know. They are at the age when kindly home influence, the kind of home that brings children back to it for Christmas, will build them a foundation that will last them all through life.

Somehow most folks when they think of taking a child into their home, think of adoption. But according to Supt. Carl F. Digel, of the Marion County Children's Home, it is not necessary to adopt any of these children in order to give them a home. Except for babies very few children are adopted now. It is possible to select from this group of boys and girls any one, give them bright and cheerful surroundings, a chance in life that they would not have otherwise, and still not go through the process of adoption. The child may be taken away with the proper approval, and returned at any time the arrangement does not work satisfactorily. Of course, the county authorities reserve the right to remove the child any time for neglect or ill treatment.

THERE is a sorry angle to this problem of placing children in good homes. That is that many of those who want to take children from the Home, make application because they want the boy or girl to work their fingers to the bone in return for what they receive. Superintendent Digel says:

"Nine-tenths of the applications received for children are from those who hope to gain cheap labor. We have far more confidence in those who take a child during the school year than in those who wait until spring work begins on a farm, and then want a boy or girl."

These boys and girls want to go out to homes, too. Here is an experience of Digel's that proves this:

"Two weeks ago five boys went with me to see a man in the western end of the county who wanted a boy and whom we had found by thorough investigation to be a kindly Christian man with a great sympathy for boys. Each of these boys wanted to stay with this man, but of course, he could choose but one."

MANY persons want babies, but few ask for the older children, Digel reveals.

"The applications for babies are far in excess of the number available at all times, but strange to say, very few ask for boys or girls from eight to 15. There are many homes in Marion County that could be brightened by a happy boy or girl this Christmas. Homes where the children have grown up and gone, homes where the laughing voice that once was, is stilled. Think of the joy on Christmas morning of watching bright eyes sparkle over the generosity of Santa Claus, and the love of 'mother' and 'dad.'"

Don't Kiss the Baby
Congress Meets
Hoover's Plan
One of the Five Greatest

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1926.)

DR. BRUNDESEN, health commissioner of Chicago, says many fathers and mothers "kiss their babies into the grave."

To kiss an infant on the mouth is a crime.

Parents stupid enough to allow strangers to kiss their children almost deserve the result.

AN infant's blood lacks the protective strength, the disease-fighting corpuscles, that come later in life. For that reason consumption nearly always starts before the child is two years old. Millions of unfortunate children have had the tubercular germs planted in the mouths by loving but ignorant mothers. Kiss your baby on the top of its head.

Let no one else kiss or handle it.

CONGRESS, resuming business today, will find the indignant farmer sitting on the capitol steps telling big income tax payers, "Until the government does something for us farmers, you don't get that refund of $250,000,000."

COTTON men will tell congress that such a rich government should do something for cotton growers, as it does for railroads and other respectable concerns that lack money.

Wheat and cotton farmers don't take kindly to the idea that it is "paternalism" to help farmers and also impossible. They remember that in the war the government lent millions of dollars to a Brooklyn street car line because it was a little hard up.

IF the southern farmers unite with the western farm bloc, both will get consideration. The men that would get the $250,000,000 income tax refund are influential in government and the $250,000,000 would be very welcome.

SECRETARY HOOVER'S plan for waterways in the United States is a magnificent, common-sense presentation of what this country should do.

Mr. Hoover shows that 3,000,000 horsepower, more than three times the amount now taken from Niagara Falls, could be developed on the Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers. Reservoirs and dams in connection with this development would check floods in the Mississippi valley and provide a six-foot channel connecting the Tennessee and Cumberland with the Ohio and Mississippi.

THE South knows what that power, now wasted, would mean to Atlanta, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Nashville.

That is only one item in a great program that the will of the American people should put through.

NEXT March comes the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Beethoven. George Eastman of Rochester is at the head of a committee to make the day memorable.

It ought to be, for Beethoven is one of the five greatest men that ever lived, and deserves world's tribute.

All the science and harmony of music were in his brain. He composed his greatest work and led the orchestra when stone deaf. He could not hear a note.

HE spent two years on a symphony in honor of Napoleon, and when the latter seized imperial power he left Napoleon out and called his symphony "Sinfonia Eroica."

He and Goethe were walking side by side. The King came along. Goethe took off his hat and stepped aside. Beethoven walked straight ahead and the King stepped to one side to let him pass.

Beethoven considered Bach the great-

Coolidge Urges Congress to Hold Steady

CONTINUED USE OF SUCCESSFUL THEORIES ASKED

Nation Is Peaceful and Prosperous, Chief Executive Declares in Address

GIVES CONGRESS MESSAGE

Longest Ever Sent by President; Clerks Read It in Both Houses

Washington, Dec. 7—"The nation is peaceful and prosperous, and what it needs most is not new legislation, nor experimentation with untied theories, but rather "a steady continuation of those which are already being crowned with such abundant success."

This was President Coolidge's reassuring message today to the dying session of the sixty-ninth congress.

It was a plea to congress not to rock the boat in the 12 weeks it has to live, but to proceed methodically about the business of making minor adjustments to the governmental machinery here and there.

His Longest Message

The message was the longest Mr. Coolidge ever has delivered to congress, despite its lack of outstanding feature. He discussed every phase of governmental activity and pronounced conditions in the main to be excellent. It was so long he did not attempt to deliver it in person, but left it to reading clerks in both houses.

His chief observations and recommendations were:

TAXATION: This is no time to attempt general tax reduction. Through strict economy, the treasury has a surplus of $383,000,000. This should either be returned to taxpayers in the form of a credit on next year's income tax payments, or devoted to reduction of the public debt.

"It is for congress to decide."

PROHIBITION: Local authorities should lend more assistance to the government in enforcement. People have a right to disagree with the law, but as long as it is here it should be enforced. Congress should enact whatever additional legislation is necessary to cor-

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS RUSH SHOWER OF BILLS

Disregard Advice of President Coolidge and Program of Democratic Leaders

Washington, Dec. 7—The country is thinking about prohibition, tax reduction, radio and farm relief—if the shower of bills thrown into congress on its opening may be taken to show the trend of public thought.

Members, fresh from contact with home influences, literally engulfed the dying session of the sixty-ninth congress today with bills and resolutions bearing on this quartet of problems.

Many members of congress are determined to abolish the nuisance taxes growing out of the World War. A half dozen bills dealing with the remaining "war taxes" have been introduced.

The advice of President Coolidge and the program of Democratic leaders both have been disregarded as individual members have written their own ideas into tax bills.

The early rush to present tax reduction measures forecasts a determined effort to alter some schedules of last year's tax law, although Republican leaders already have turned thumbs down on the suggestions.

More than 12,000 bills now await action on the congressional calendars. Hundreds of new bills are expected to be introduced by the end of the week.

NON-STOP PARIS-NEW YORK FLIGHT BEING PLANNED

Washington, Dec. 7 — A non-stop, Paris to New York flight, will be attempted early in the new year by a French pilot flying a 420 horsepower Bernard Fereois monoplane, the Department of Commerce was advised today by Trade Commissioner H. H. Kelly at Paris.

The plane will have a speed of 125 miles an hour, Kelly's message stated. The name of the pilot and the backers of the flight were not mentioned.

USE LADDER TO RESCUE MAN IN DITCHED AUTO

Car Occupied by Columbus People Slides from Road Near Here

Before they could get their machine out of the ditch on the Delaware-rd, two miles south of the Children's Home yesterday afternoon, members of the party in the automobile had to extricate one of the group from the machine.

In the machine were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keller and Marshall Pixley, all of Columbus. They were coming to Marion to attend the funeral of Mrs. Edward Wolbert.

Driving slowly on the slippery road south of the Children's Home the car slid gently into a ditch and turned on its side. The car was not damaged and none of the occupants was injured. Pixley, who weighs more than 200 pounds, and has a crippled leg, could not get out of the left side of the machine and up onto the road. It was necessary to procure a stepladder from a farmhouse and have him mount to road by it. Then with the aid of other men Keller pushed the machine out of the ditch and the party continued on its way.

Automobile License Plates Go on Sale Today at Marion Auto Club Headquarters

Tags Released on Receipt of Message from State Department Head; Dr. J. W. McMurray Takes Out First Number; 1,100 Reservations

Marion County's annual sale of automobile license tags began today at the office of the Marion Auto Club at Hotel Harding.

The distribution was started today following receipt of a message from Chalmers R. Wilson, head of the State Automobile Registration Department at Columbus, stating that all license tag agencies having supplies on hand could begin their sale at once. The license plates for Marion County were received at the Auto Club office more than a week ago and all other arrangements for distribution had been completed, so that it was possible to begin operations immediately after arrival of the message from state headquarters. It was originally planned to place the licenses on sale Dec. 10.

First Applicant

The first license for 1927 went to Dr. James W. McMurray, and the second to Dr. Bret Hurd.

Reservations for approximately 1,100 licenses had been made in advance, chiefly by persons who desire to have the same numbers issued to them as for 1926.

Special numbers for members of the Auto Club run from 96-001 to 97-000. There are 1,000 trunk tags numbered from 122-001 to 123-000 and 7,000 for general distribution to owners of passenger cars, this series starting with 786-401.

Instructions

Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Auto Club, again issued a statement today instructing all applicants for licenses to be provided with their bills of sale, previously filed with the county clerk, when calling for their plates for 1927. No licenses can be issued without these credentials.

Mrs. Gallagher will be assisted in the license distribution by a force of five extra clerks.

"FROZEN CREDIT"

Shows Every Indication of Spreading, President Coolidge Told

Washington, Dec. 7—"Frozen credit" in the middle west farm belt, which is blamed for a score of recent bank failures in Iowa is "showing every indication of spreading and unless the situation is corrected it will become serious," President Coolidge was informed today by Allen Moore, Republican national committeeman from Illinois, who called at the White House and talked farm relief with the executive.

Moore informed President Coolidge there is no let-up in the grain belt's demand for relief legislation.

CHRISTMAS VACATIONS WILL VARY IN SCHOOLS

City Students Will Have Longest Holiday Period; St. Mary's Second

Schools of Marion County and city will have vacations of varying lengths for the Christmas holidays. The public schools of the city will close for the longest period, two weeks. The city schools will close on Dec. 17 and will open on Jan. 3, the Monday after New Year's.

St. Mary's school will have the next longest vacation, closing Dec. 23 and opening Jan. 3. The schools of the county will have only a week's vacation, closing on Dec. 24, the day before Christmas, and opening on Jan. 3.

The two week's vacation of the city schools will enable many of the students to work during most of the time off, and a great many have jobs already, to which they will go as soon as school closes.

Y. M. C. A. BOARD DISCUSSES PLAN OF EXPANSION

Extension Work for Next Three Years Outlined at Directors' Session

Plans for important extension and expansion of the activities of the local Y. M. C. A. during the next three years were outlined last night at the monthly meeting of the board of directors by Martin Verburg, general secretary.

Outstanding features of the three-year program include employment of a full-time woman's work secretary in 1927, a full-time secretary to handle activities of the high school boys' department, improvements and additions to Camp Robert Uhler at Hepburn, the association's popular vacation center for boys and girls, and plans to increase membership of the association from 1,050 to $1,350.

Special work in the boys' and girls' department will receive marked attention during the three years, Secretary Verburg's comprehensive survey indicated. Plans to employ a full-time woman's work secretary is a part of this program, services of such an official having become urgently needed as a result of the rapid growth of this department.

Hi-Y Class

Marked increase in the activities of the boys' department is also planned. The proposed high school boys' work secretary will give his time to the organization of Hi-Y clubs and to

THREE SHOT TO DEATH IN CHICAGO WARFARE

Mexicans Fire on Police; Many Wounded; Tear Bombs Bring Fight to Halt

Chicago, Dec. 7—A police officer and two Mexican laborers were shot to death in a pitched battle in a railroad labor camp of the Chicago Northwestern near Melrose Park early today.

Another police officer and several Mexicans were wounded.

The trouble started when Melrose Park police received word that a woman was being attacked in the labor camp. Officers J. L. Stahl and Charles Kolwitz answered the call. As they approached the camp, they were fired upon by the Mexicans.

Stahl fell mortally wounded. Kolwitz killed two of the laborers before he went down, wounded in the side. A riot call brought squads, armed with rifles and sawed-off shotguns from Chicago and nearby stations.

A fierce battle raged, the Mexicans barricaded in the box cars in which they were quartered. A tear bomb attack finally brought about their surrender. Half a dozen of the Mexicans suffered flesh wounds and were rushed to the hospital.

RAIN FAILS TO DAMPEN ARDOR OF CHILDREN

Jolly Old St. Nick Proves To Be Everything Kiddies Expected of Him

PARADE IS COLORFUL

Climax of Community Celebration Tonight at Central School

Santa Claus came to Marion today.

He stepped right out of his storybook role into a real honest-to-goodness Santa, talking and joking with his countless admirers.

With him came his six swift reindeer, which yearly carry his gift-laden sleigh on its flying trip over the world, and several of his Eskimo friends.

To meet this jolly old fellow, the patron saint of all good children, came thousands of school youngsters from all sections of the city and county.

Braving icy streets and highways and a bitterly cold rain they swarmed over the icy streets to get a glimpse of St. Nick.

They came, they saw, they marched in the chill rain. Nothing could drown their exuberance. None complained of the weather. Their minds and hearts were centered upon but one object, Santa.

Behind his six sleek reindeer, Dasher and Prancer, Dancer and Vixen, Donder and Blitzer, Santa Claus rode in his beautiful sleigh. Tautuk the Eskimo, who travels with Santa Claus, and takes care of his reindeer, marched at the head of Dasher and Prancer. For the reindeer are full of life and do not like to travel as slow as necessary in the parade. They are used to flying over the ice covered stretches of the far north.

Carries Children

Mrs. Tautuk brought her two children along with Santa Claus and carried them in the parade. Baby Tautuk, who is only three months old, rode on his mother's back, in the hood of her coat, just as he does at his home. Then there was the older of the two Tautuk boys, who traveled with his mother. He is two years old.

The parade was all that had been planned. There were all the bands that had been invited to take part, the automobile with all the crippled children, the school automobiles, carrying the children from the country districts, and the machines carrying Mayor Hazen and his guests.

Along the line of march of the parade stood more children than Marion has ever seen before, all with shining eyes and fast beating hearts, as Santa and his reindeer moved along. The finest man in the world had come to Marion and was marching before their very eyes.

Arrives Early Today

Santa Claus drove swiftly into Marion this morning just before dawn, and was met by the group of men who arranged for his visit here. Santa found every comfort arranged for him, and in a short time he was ready for his appearance. Santa started early from his last stopping place, so that he would be here in plenty of time to get ready to meet the children. Tautuk took the reindeer away and saw that they were fed and taken care of. All the trappings that Santa Claus carries with him was set up and made ready.

In the meantime other work was going on. The huge tree under which the Eskimos will camp for a time to-

CITY FINANCE BODY IS FACING COURT PROBLEM

Requirements of New Tribunal Present Complicated Situation, Members Claim

The finance committee of City Council will face what promises to be a rather complicated problem this week when it meets to draft an ordinance designating the number of assistants to be appointed for Marion's recently elected Municipal judge. Fixing salaries for the court attaches, which will also be included in the ordinance, is expected to be an equally troublesome question.

Members of the finance committee, it is indicated, are determined to closely follow a policy of economy in municipal expenses during the next year and are fearful that cost of operating the new court may be an obstacle to the success of this program unless utmost care is exercised in arranging the court's budget.

The economy program, as a consequence, may conflict with Judge-elect Martin's plans for operation of the court, according to present indications. Recently Mr. Martin announced appointment of a corps of six assistants, consisting of a chief clerk, deputy clerk, bookkeeper, typist and file clerk, and two bailiffs. Some councilmen, it is stated, are of the opinion that it might be well to start off the court with a smaller office force and then add to it as the need develops.

Those taking this stand believe that it will probably be several months after the court begins operation before the number of clerks and bailiffs applied for will be necessary.

Martin's Views

On the other hand, Judge-elect Martin is convinced that he has held the size of his office force down to the lowest mark that will be possible in carrying on the work of the new court efficiently. He is supported in this contention by a number of local attorneys conversant with the conduct of Municipal Courts in other cities. It is claimed, in fact, that after the local court is in full swing, the business will become so voluminous that more clerks will have to be added to the number already requested by Mr. Martin.

The question of pay, which promises to become a subject of controversy, is based upon the minimum compensation fixed for the chief clerk and bailiffs in the legislative act which created the Municipal court. This minimum is $1,800 annually for the chief clerk and $960 for each bailiff.

Averse to Plan

Members of the finance committee, it is said, will probably be averse to going above these minimum figures, although there are others interested in organization of the court who maintain that this salary scale is not adequate. The Municipal Court, it is predicted, will handle a volume of business even larger than the Common Pleas Court and as a consequence the minimum pay allowances would not be commensurate with the work and duties of Mr. Martin's assistants.

Early action on the clerk hire and salary ordinance will be necessary in order that the legislation may be in force when the court is ready to begin operations on Jan. 1. An effort will be made by the finance committee to reach a definite decision at a conference to be held some time this week in order that the ordinance may be submitted to Council at its meeting next Monday night. Because of having delayed action on the matter until this time, it will be necessary to put the ordinance through as an emergency measure.

With a desire to maintain strict economy in city expenses influencing them in one direction and the obvious need of doing nothing that will handicap the new Municipal Court hearing down in the opposite direction, it is apparent that final decision on the question will not be reached without lengthy and worrisome deliberation.

FILES PETITION FOR PROBATION OF LOST WILL

Unusual Case Brought into Probate Court; First of Kind on Record

Petition to probate a will that has been lost and cannot be brought in for probate, has been filed in Probate Court by George Stiffler, husband of the late Martha Stiffler.

This action, to probate a lost will, is the first of its kind to be filed in Marion County, so far as there is any record.

According to the petition filed by George Stiffler, his wife died on March 12, 1926. On Aug. 15, 1925 a will, which is held to be the last will and testament of Martha Stiffler, was made and witnessed by Joseph M. Justice and John Powell.

After the death of Mrs. Stiffler the will could not be found, although every effort was made to locate it and search was made in every place the will could possibly have been placed. When the will could not be found it was necessary to file a petition asking the court to probate a lost will. The procedure necessary is somewhat longer than that of probating a will in existence, as heirs must be given longer notice and other measures taken to comply with the law.

Besides the husband, four children of her own survived Mrs. Stiffler, and these are named in the petition. The petition sets forth that Mrs. Stiffler left her real and personal property under the will to her husband, George Stiffler.

Will Filed

The last will and testament of Roscoe Patterson has been filed for probate. The will names his wife, Elizabeth Patterson as sole heir, and also names her as executrix without bond.

Seeks Divorce

Suit for divorce has been filed by Otto C. Schlientz against Verda Schlientz, on ground of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. Schlientz had three children by a former wife, whom he says Verda Schlientz promised to love and cherish at the time he married, and which she has failed to do, he claims. He also charges her with being spiteful and jealous, and on Nov. 26, 1924, with threatening his life. He says she refused to accompany him any place, but preferred to sit home and sulk or quarrel. He says that when he returned home after being out alone she accused him of infidelity.

Mrs. Schlientz filed suit for divorce prior to the action brought by Schlientz, and this was preceded by an agreement to separate, under which Schlientz was to pay her $500 to release her share in his property. When she brought the divorce action he filed motion to dismiss it, and also his answer and cross petition. The motion was granted, and the suit dismissed.

Answer Filed

Answer of Coleman W. Johnson to the divorce petition of Ara B. Johnson has been filed. He denies her charges and asks dismissal of the suit.

JURY ACCUSES YOUTH SEARCH INTENSIFIED

Letter Found on Girl's Body Leads to Clew; Reveals Planned Elopement

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., Dec. 7—The search for Erdman Olson, 18-year-old Gale College student, was intense today following the coroner's inquest which named the youth as the slayer of pretty Clara Olson, 22-year-old farm girl, whose body was found in a shallow grave near Rising Sun, Wis.

Less than 15 minutes after the last of 15 witnesses had testified at the inquest over the girl's body, the jury reported the girl had come to her death "by a violent blow administered by Erdman Olson on the left side of her head, causing fracture of the skull, probably in the early morning of Sept. 10, 1926."

A letter found on the girl's body, alleged to have been written by young Olson, had much weight with the coroner's jury. This letter outlined a plan for an elopement on the night of Sept. 9. The letter implied that the girl's expected child would have a name and advised her "If you wish to avoid disgrace, do as I say and keep mum."

A sister of the murdered girl testified the handwriting was that of Olson. The letter was unsigned.

EXPECT BREAKING UP OF BIGGEST ICE BLOCKADE

Thirty Boats Already Freed; 91 Ships Still Locked in Channel at Soo

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 7—One of the biggest ice blockades in Great Lakes marine history, which held 121 ships imprisoned in the channels of St. Mary's River, near here, was expected to be completely broken today.

Thirty boats already have been freed from the ice.

Marine men predicted the 91 boats locked in the down-bound channel, and about 20 more waiting above the river for passage, would be diverted into the up-bound channel, which was cleared yesterday.

The movement of the entire up-bound fleet occurred just as captains were despairing of getting out of the ice prison before spring. As hope was dying, two tugs, the Iowa and Sabine, succeeded in liberating three steamers. They were the George F. Rand, Agawa, and Hobart W. Smith.

Shortly afterward three others were freed. Then the remainder of the up-bound fleet was able to move.

COOPER POST RE-ELECTS ALL OLD OFFICERS

Charles Wiley Continues as Commander; To Hold Installation

Commander Charles Wiley, together with other officers who served the past year, were re-elected at the annual business and dinner meeting of Cooper Post, No. 17, G. A. R., Monday in the [illegible] Home, S. High-st. Installation of officers will take place at a meeting to be held Jan. 3.

Following the business session a program was given, which included a talk by Lieut. Walter Lee Sherfey, a musical program by Mrs. Sherfey, and a reading, "Those Old Gray Boys in Blue," by Mrs. D. E. Montgomery. The program was in charge of Col. George B. Christian, patriotic instructor, who also gave an informal talk. American flags decorated the tables at which covers were placed for members of the post and their guests which included the Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans and Corporal Harris Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R.

Commander Wiley presided for the business session assisted by Colonel George B. Christian as adjutant, G. W. Balding, chaplain, Marshall Markey, senior vice and W. E. Grubb as junior vice. The session opened with the Lord's Prayer, led by Chaplain Balding, followed by the singing of "America." A report was made on the condition of Pr. G. T. Harding, C. S. Seiter and A. B. Hayes, who were unable to be present.

Officers' List

Officers who will serve with Commander Wiley next year are Francis Layton, senior vice commander; M. A. Bever, junior vice commander; G. W. Williams, quartermaster; G. A. Balding, chaplain; David Seas, officer of the day; J. H. Buchanan, officer of the guard; Colonel George B. Christian, patriotic instructor, Dr. G. T. Harding, surgeon. Miss Carrie Bain was appointed sergeant major and Mrs. W. H. Pfeifer quartermaster's sergeant. Mrs. J. H. Dundore was appointed mustering officer; Marshall Markey, inspection officer and Greenberry Willis and Charles Mosher, members of the auditing committee.

J. H. Carpenter, Greenbury Willis and Marshall Markey were chosen delegates to represent the post at the annual state encampment to be held next year at Canton. G. W. Balding, David Seas and J. H. Buchanan were chosen alternates. Members of the post drum corps entertained with a program of patriotic music during the program and preceding the dinner hour and several entertaining numbers were played on the graphophone. A message of good wishes from Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hayes, who were unable to be present was received.

Pays Tribute

Lieutenant Sherfey paid a high tribute to the veterans and stated that it was utterly impossible for the young people of today to ever understand what they had gone through. He urged the teaching of a fuller and more complete history of the Civil War and also the World War in our schools of today in order to bring the children of the country to a deeper realization of the courage, suffering and horribleness of the wars and inspire them to a deeper and more profound respect and admiration of the veterans.

"The Civil War was a more terrible war than the World War because of the privations undergone by the soldiers," Lieutenant Sherfey stated. "While the World War was a most terrible one, we had expert medical attention and splendid hospitalization. Many soldiers of the Civil War died from lack of medical attention. The women of both these wars deserve as great a monument as those who fought, as a tribute to their work at home."

Talks on South

Lieutenant Sherfey gave an interesting talk on the reaction of the south after the Civil War and pointed out that the first memorial service for both Union and Confederate Soldiers was held in Columbus, Ga., in April, 1866. "Lincoln's birthday is a legal holiday in Tennessee, and all business activities are suspended to pay tribute to the martyred president," he said.

Mrs. Sherfey sang two numbers, "Maryland, My Maryland", and "Old Kentucky Home", and played a piano number, "Stars and Stripes Forever". She also played the accompaniments for the patriotic numbers sung by the audience.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made—for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have, Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue headaches, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

ROTARIANS TO BE HOSTS OF CHILDREN AT PARTY

Plans Announced at Weekly Luncheon: R. F. Fletcher Gives Christmas Talk

Christmas was the subject before the Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding Monday noon.

R. F. Fletcher, advertising manager of The Star, gave the club members a fine talk on "Christmas Spirit," and J. H. Mason, who presided, reminded the club that the annual Christmas party, at which each member has a child for a guest, would be held Dec. 20. Mason asked that each club member turn in his card at once, so that the committee in charge of the guests could assign children to those members who had not invited one themselves.

Fletcher reminded the Rotarians that "Christmas spirit" did not depend on a date and place alone, but more on the mind and heart of the individual. He said there was no doubt that Christmas was being overdone in a commercial way, and called for a greater expression of "Christmas spirit" throughout the year.

Story of Wise Man

Then he told the story of the fourth wise man, who had hoped to be present in Bethlehem on the "Best Christmas," but because he turned aside to aid a stricken wayfarer, lost his chance to go to Bethlehem with his companions. And how all through his life he sought the King, but never found Him, and one by one the three jewels he had planned to lay at the feet of Christ, as the other wise men had laid their gifts, went for aid for those in dire distress. With one jewel left he sought for Christ just before He died, and just before he seized his opportunity he sacrificed his last jewel to save a girl from slavery. And the wise man died, as he thought in failure and despair, but he was comforted by a voice, telling him his sacrifices had not been in vain.

Rotarians dined on moose steak Monday, the meat being the result of a trip to New Brunswick, Canada, by Charles H. Isaly. Isaly told in a brief talk how he shot the moose, and of his trip into the north woods, a trip which he has made each year for six years.

BUSES BEHIND SCHEDULE, BUT TRAINS ON TIME

Sheet of Ice Has Little Effect on Railroads; No Wire Damage

Although motor buses ran behind yesterday and Sunday and were not completely up with their schedule today, all passenger trains and interurbans operating through Marion were marked "on time" in spite of icy tracks and other weather difficulties.

Motor buses did not abandon their trips, however, although in some cases it would have been justifiable.

A number of week-end travelers who made the journey to near-by cities by auto returned Sunday night by train and interurban because of the icy roads and highways. Passenger traffic over the railroads operating through this city was a trifle heavier than usual.

The ice failed to disconnect wires between Marion and other railroad cities and in fact, little difficulty was experienced in operation of trains on regular schedule despite the icy conditions.

Finishing touches are being put on the new drainage system of the Steam Shovel Co. between the Hocking Valley tracks and the Steam Shovel buildings, just north of W. Center-st.

Relining Tracks

Erie section gangs have been employed in the local yards near the intersection of the Erie and Hocking Valley lines for the last few days. They are relining the tracks at the intersection.

Fools' Paradise

The Startling Story of a Girl's Great Folly

AS secretary to Fred Joyce, the prominent attorney, Jane's position was a fortunate one. Yet she was unhappy. She longed to escape from the sordid world of business into a world of freedom and gaiety.

One day her employer said: "Let's take a holiday. A long one. We'll do Paris, London, and the Continent. I'll buy you everything your heart desires. Will you go?"

Jane's senses whirled. But instinct warned her to refuse. Then Joyce slipped a magnificent rope of pearls around her neck. "Will you accept them?" her tempter whispered. Her head swam. His promise of luxury rose vividly in her imagination. She fought for strength to say no! But he read her answer in her eyes.

Had Jane counted the cost she would have destroyed herself rather than enter that mad compact.

Her pitiful story, entitled "My Dangerous Paradise", appears in January True Story Magazine. Don't miss it!

"True Story a Great Teacher"—Says Prominent Minister

I think True Story Magazine is an excellent publication. Its stories are couched in language which will not give offense to the most fastidious. It teaches the great lesson of caution in dealing with life and sounds a warning to young people such as every pulpit aims to declare. The greatest lessons are those gleaned from experience. Therefore, in the experiences related in its pages, the great lessons of life are clearly taught. I would like to see TRUE STORY MAGAZINE in every home in the land.

Very truly yours,
Rev. Wm. L. Robinson.

Albany, N.Y.

"My Taste of Life"—This is a story of a woman's discontent—of a woman who had every comfort that money can buy, including a loyal husband's love—but who longed for the gay lights of the city, the revelry of the night clubs, theatres, dancing, dining. An invitation to visit a friend for a few weeks gave her the excuse she wanted. She went. Every girl, every wife, who is deluded by the so-called gay life of the city should read this startling true-life narrative.

No wonder the girls were wild about him—and Ellie's heart near burst with gladness when he singled her out as his future mate. Long drives in beloved moonlit lanes became their nightly program—and then one day he brought her a message that was to bring her love castle tumbling about her ears, and fill her life with tragedy. A powerful lesson-story every girl should read.

The Penalties of Ignorance

Most wrong-doing can be traced directly to ignorance. The only cure for ignorance is education; and the quickest, surest form of teaching is that based upon example.

By setting forth the experiences of those who, through ignorance, or folly, have violated the Divine code of Right; by revealing the temptations, traps and pitfalls of life, True Story Magazine is able to instruct, warn, guide and inspire thousands who can be reached in no other way.

Sixty Prospective McDermott Trial Jurors Questioned

PAT SEEMINGLY MORE NERVOUS AND WORN TODAY

Rumor Has It That Much Depends on State's "Surprise Witness"

Courthouse, Canton, Dec. 7—Patrick E. McDermott, indicted a few months ago by a Stark County grand jury charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett militant Canton editor, today saw jurors box, wherein those that are to decide his fate will sit, filled five different times as the tedious, wearing process of selecting "an unbiased group" continued into the second day of his trial.

Patrick E. McDermott, trim and suave, with his sandy hair slicked down in true cheik fashion, with his dull eyes at times half-hidden in his pallid face, watched half a dozen lawyers haggle and argue of the selection of those who will say whether he is guilty or innocent of the murder of the vice-fighting publisher.

Pat Nervous

McDermott, despite the fact that he smiled with his attorneys, and that he carried himself jauntily to and fro from the sombre courtroom as guards led him about during the recesses, seemed nervous and worn today.

The question, "Do you believe in death by electrocution?" which Prosecutor C. B. McClintock has hurled time and again at nearly half a hundred witnesses, seemed to irk Pat. His clenched hands tightened as did his nearly colorless lips when that question was rejected time and again today.

"McDermott will be convicted of the murder of Don Mellett," declared Prosecutor McClintock today.

"Our evidence will conclusively show that he is unpardonably guilty."

McClintock, mild-mannered attorney, fighting perhaps his last and greatest case as prosecutor of Stark County as his term ends early in January, declared that the defense would never be able to tear down the story of Steve Kascholk, reported informed who first brought McDermott under suspicion shortly after the murder of Mellett in July.

Kascholk, a Nanty Glo, Pa., miner, and home town friend of McDermott, will take the stand as one of the state's chief witnesses, McClintock stated today.

"Cold Feet"

Kascholk, who journeyed to Canton shortly after the murder and declared to investigators that he had been hired to "slug an editor," will state from the witness chair that he was assigned with McDermott to "pull the job," but that he got "cold feet" and backed out, prosecutor stated.

Then, according to reports today, will come the state's big surprise witness. Who that witness is or what that witness knows about the case could not be learned. McClintock refused to discuss any particular surprise witness.

"But we have plenty of them," he declared, "and McDermott will be convicted."

Pat "Framed"

Defense attorneys, on the other hand, declared that Pat had been "framed" and that he will stand vindicated when the trial is over.

Twelve jurors had been tentatively seated again when the court adjourned for lunch.

The state had three peremptory challenges left to exercise and the defense had fifteen.

promoting the work among high school boys in the rural districts of the county.

A large and thoroughly-equipped clubhouse is listed among the important additions and improvements planned at Camp Robert Uhler. The club-house will enable the boys and girls to participate in a continuous program of sports and entertainment during their vacation seasons, regardless of weather conditions.

In past years the summer program has been handicapped by wet weather. Construction of a club-house large enough for basketball and volleyball will solve this problem.

To Grade Bank

Additional plans for the camp to include grading of the river bank so that all drainage will be toward the river bed, improvement of the running track around the grounds, removal of old frame buildings now on the grounds and gradual development of a building program which will provide cabins for all campers within the next few years.

Mr. Verburg reported that while outlining this program recently to a business man he was assured a gift of $500 to start the fund necessary for financing. Two of the directors last night agreed to add another $1,000 to the fund.

Extensions to the service of the physical training department will figure prominently in the three-year program. The committee in charge of this branch has arranged to give free physical examinations to all boys during the coming year. It is planned to make this general for all members of the association before 1928.

Pledge Co-operation

The Marion County Medical Society, under the leadership of Dr. A. Rhu, has pledged co-operation.

Efforts are to be made to enlist representatives from all departments in the leaders' training corps. This is planned to give more boys and girls an opportunity to obtain valuable benefits from personal training by the physical director.

Increased enrollment in the association's swimming classes for boys and girls will be sought during the summer months and additional provisions will be made for employing capable instructors.

New Feature

A new feature will be development of an extension service among the churches of the city. During recent months, Secretary Verburg stated, a number of the churches have signified a desire to organize boys' departments and the association secretaries are now prepared to proceed with assisting in this auxiliary service.

Standardized programs for boys nine years of age and up will be offered to churches and Sunday Schools. A number of these are tentatively under way. Groups 9-11 will be known as "Friendly Indians," 12-14 as "Pioneers," 15-17 as "Comrades," and 18-21 as Church-Y clubs.

It was announced that any church desiring to form Boy Scout troops will be assisted by the local heads of that organization.

Membership Plans

The schedule of membership increase planned for the association during the three years with 300 additional members as the goal, is as follows: starting with 1,050 in 1926, and going to 1,210 in 1927, and 1,350 in 1928.

The meeting of directors at which Secretary Verburg submitted his plans was held last night in the dining room of the Anthony Laundry. There was a large representation of both directors and trustees present.

Secretary Verburg's program was approved by a unanimous vote of the board.

ELECTION ISSUE IS THREATENED BY DEMOCRATS

Walsh Resolution Would Authorize Investigation of Bribery Charges

Washington, Dec. 7—Threatening to keep the issue of election corruption alive until the 1928 presidential campaign, Democratic leaders of the senate were prepared today to force immediate action on the Walsh resolution, authorizing an investigation of charges that Senator Arthur R. Gould, Republican, of Maine, was involved in a $100,000 bribery case.

The inquiry will not be opposed by Republican leaders, it was learned, as the resolution does not provide for initiating a contest against the Maine senator.

It merely called on the senate elections committee to investigate the charges against Gould and then to recommend appropriate action to the senate. Republicans control the committee.

Would Debate Issue

Administration leaders, however, saw in the move a Democratic program for keeping the issue of election corruption constantly before the American people for the next two years. By such a maneuver, the Democrats would debate the Gould case at the present short session and then initiate contests against Senators-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, as soon as the new senate convenes in the seventieth congress.

The resolution against Gould, recited charges made by a Canadian jurist several years ago that the Maine senator has paid $100,000 to J. K. Fleming, then premier of the province of New Brunswick. This money was paid the premier by Gould, the jurist charged, in anticipation of future favors for a railroad then represented by the senator. The same charges were aired in Gould's recent campaign, but were ignored by the voters of Maine.

Adoption of the resolution was assured when Republican leaders let it be known they would not oppose it. Their every effort, however, will be used to prevent the initiation of a contest against Gould.

The Walsh move, too, found the Republican insurgent bloc ready to vote for a senatorial inquiry.

"As the charges, coming from a foreign jurist, involve our relations toward a friendly nation, I believe there should be an inquiry," said one insurgent leader. "I don't feel, though, that they justify an election contest as the charges had nothing to do with Mr. Gould's election. In any event, the people of Maine passed upon the charges and did not feel they were serious enough to prevent his service in the senate."

rect existing faults in the enforcement machinery.

FOREIGN RELATIONS: America is at peace with the world and plans to continue so.

"We are strong enough not to be sensitive over trivials. We fear nobody and nobody fears us. America is willing to discontinue disarmament whenever other nations are ready."

Mr. Coolidge did not mention the Mexican controversy at all.

AGRICULTURE: Agriculture is slowly recovering from its post-war slump. There are bad spots, but in the main, the picture is pleasing. Cotton producers should reduce their acreage one-third. The government stands ready to give aid in promoting credit and cooperative effort, "but there are certain pitfalls to be avoided," and "it is necessary to avoid putting the government in the business of production marketing or price-fixing."

"We are spending many millions each year to increase farm production. We ought now to put more emphasis on farm marketing."

NATIONAL DEFENSE: The army and navy are large enough. The best preparedness the nation can secure now is to pay off the last war debt for "a country loaded with debt is a country devoid of its first line defense."

TARIFF: America has been made prosperous by the present tariff act. Don't tinker with it.

RADIO LEGISLATION: Congress should end the present confusion by giving the Department of Commerce regulatory powers, as proposed in the White bill. There is no need for a separate bureau to handle the problem, as proposed in the Dill bill.

ECONOMY: Economy as practiced by the administration has proven its worth.

"Many projects are being broached requiring large outlays. It would be greatly to the benefit of the country if we avoid all commitments at this time except those of pressing nature."

WATERWAYS: Extension of the Mississippi River system and development of the lower Colorado River are worthy projects and should be given prompt and favorable action by congress.

RECLAMATION: The government is now engaged on a program that will absorb all its funds for some years, but study of future needs should continue.

RAILROADS: Consolidations would promote lower transportation rates and enabling legislation should be passed.

MERCHANT MARINE: American merchants should pay more attention to shipping in American ships.

"The great need of our merchant marine is not more ships, but more freight."

COAL: Congress has been dilatory in not inspiring the country against future strikes. The president should be empowered to deal with emergencies through legislation, providing for mediation, distribution of fuel, and protection from profiteers.

JUDICIARY: Congress should raise judicial salaries.

BANKING: The federal reserve system has proved its worth and should be safeguarded. Congress should pass the McFadden branch-banking bill.

THE NEGRO: Lynching should be eradicated by law.

VETERANS: "I do not favor any extension of the pension system at this time."

ALIEN PROPERTY: Congress should work out a program whereby alien property can be returned and at the same time protect Americans having claims against Germany.

FEDERAL REGULATION: "I am in favor of reducing, rather than expanding, government bureaus which seek to regulate and control business activities."

Local and state governments should not look to the government to regulate what is really their own problems.

THE PHILIPPINES: General Leonard Wood has made a good record as governor general of the Philippines, but at an early date our possessions should be taken out from under all military control and administered entirely by the civil side of the government.

"We are attempting to assist these people to self-government and should look upon their wishes with great respect, granting their requests when right, yet maintaining a frank firmness in refusing when they are wrong."

The president's opening admonition to congress was against attempting any extended legislative program. Most of the recommendations have heretofore been made in previous messages.

He made one suggestion that the business of government could be expedited if congress would appropriate for two years at a time instead of one.

Speaks of Ideals

"Very much time could thus be saved," he said, and it would result "in decreasing the work of legislation."

In conclusion, Mr. Coolidge spoke of "American ideals."

"To relieve the land of burdens that came from the war, to release to the individual more of the fruits of his own industry, to increase earning capacity and decrease hours of labor, to enlarge his vision through good roads and better transportation, to place before him the opportunity for education, to leave him free to receive the inspiration of religion, all these are ideals which deliver him from the servitude of the body and exalt him to the service of the soul. Through this emancipation from the things that are material, we broaden our dominion over the things that are spiritual."

night and where the huge Christmas community service will be held tonight, was being put up in the grounds at Oak-st and Center-st.

Santa Claus rested for a short time after he arrived here, and then he took out the list of children whose letters he had received, and who were afraid they would not get to see him, and told his helpers he must see some of these children before he did anything else. So while the reindeer were being fed and cared for Santa Claus got into an automobile and went to visit his little friends who are sick and could not get out to see the parade. Santa Claus went to visit eight places this morning. The boys and girls he visited were Barbara Hulling, 261 Edgewood-av, Virginia Everly, 320 Oney-av, Miriam Cunningham, 891 E. Church-st, Anne Mae Bumgartner, Mound and Wood-sts, Donald Watters, 601 Wood-st, Billy Temple, 619 Wood-st and the children of Eugene Moore, 265 Bellefontaine-av.

Guest of Mayor

Other children who are ill and cannot get out will be visited by Santa Claus before he leaves the city tonight.

Santa Claus was the guest of Mayor Earl Hazen and mayors of other cities at the Hotel Harding this noon.

Mayor Hazen welcomed Santa Claus to Marion. He said:

Mr. Santa Claus, fellow mayors and gentlemen:

It is a great pleasure to me to be present in person to meet Santa Claus and with his entry into Marion to realize that we are again to partake of the cup of happiness which manifests itself in the spirit of Christmas and of Santa Claus.

The most wonderful part of a child's life is the approach of the day of the birth of the Man whose advent gave a promise of blessing to mankind and whose life upon earth among men bestowed countless gifts and blessing which have made possible peace on earth and good will toward men. And now annually on the date of His birth Santa Claus comes in His spirit to gladden not only the hearts of boys and girls, but to reunite the family circles by the bestowal of gifts that mean not only the symbol of love and happiness but the renewal of bonds of friendship.

I not only believed in Santa Claus when I was a boy, but I have continued throughout the years of my life to intensely believe in the spirit of Santa Claus which during the Christmas season means so much for the peace and happiness and the good will on earth of men and women toward one another.

I have listened to his coming down the chimney and have heard the rustle of his packages as he was bestowing them in our stockings or upon the fireplace. But never until today has it been my privilege to have seen Old Santa in person. It is therefore more than an honor and a pleasure to me as executive head of this city to welcome to Marion, Santa Claus, and with his coming may I add the wish and the desire that not only shall business in Marion be prosperous because of the many gifts which Santa Claus will buy from our stores, but because by reason of the bestowal of those gifts in the spirit and the name of the Santa of all, that it will increase the breadth and warmth of human happiness.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING CLASSES ARE POSTPONED

Weather Conditions Handicap Workers; School To Reopen on Feb. 14

The Leadership Training School, to have been held this week at the First Presbyterian Church, under the local council of Religious Education, has been postponed until the week of Feb. 14 it was announced today by Mrs. Roy W. Knuble, registrar. The same program will be carried out and the same instructors employed, it was stated.

The handicap of the weather conditions together with civic programs which those in charge of the school wish to cooperate and participate in which were arranged since plans were made for the school in August, were deemed good reasons for postponing the school until after the holidays. The plan for postponing the school was agreed to heartily by the 33 people in attendance at the first session of the school last night.

FINE AGAINST POOLROOM PROPRIETOR SUSPENDED

Mayor Assesses R. R. Karcher $25; Released on Promise To Obey Law

R. R. Karcher, proprietor of a poolroom on E. Center-st under the room formerly occupied by the Boston Store, arrested Sunday night on a charge of operating a keno game, pleaded guilty when arraigned before Mayor Earl M. Hazen, yesterday, and a fine of $25 placed against him was suspended when he promised to strictly observe the anti-gambling laws in the future.

The mayor was lenient in this case, due to the fact that Karcher, who purchased the pool-room only two weeks ago, explained that he found the keno board at the place and thought that its operation would not be a violation of local regulations.

The keno outfit was confiscated by Chief of Police Thompson.

ICE FORCES MEN TO DISCONTINUE HUNT FOR YOUTH

All but Small Area of Crystal Lake Surface Frozen Over

With Crystal Lake almost completely blanketed with a heavy crust of ice as a result of the last few days of freezing weather, city and county police have been forced to temporarily abandon their search for the body of Carlton Virden, 18, of 631 Mismi-st, who is supposed to have committed suicide by drowning himself in the lake last Thursday afternoon or night.

The ice, which covers all but a small area of the water at the center of the lake, is thick enough to prevent officers from continuing their hunt in the row boat that has been used during the last few days in an effort to locate the youth's body. It is not sufficiently strong, however, to provide a safe footing for searchers and as a consequence the lake must be abandoned for the time being as a center of investigation.

Continuance of the cold weather may mean that the boy's body, should it actually be in the lake, will not be found for 10 days or two weeks. Even should the ice begin to thaw today, it is not expected that use of the row-boat can be resumed by searchers for several days.

In the meantime, authorities and relatives who have been investigating the case from every possible angle since the Virden boy disappeared last week, are as much at sea as when the probe began. Sheriff James A. Deal and Chief of Police James W. Thompson, who have headed the investigation throughout, are still inclined to believe that the suicide theory is correct and that the lake will finally give up its dead.

Hold To Suicide Theory

Relatives of the missing youth also hold to the suicide theory, although skepticism is expressed by many other persons who have been following the case.

Various rumors and reports have come to Sheriff Deal and Chief Thompson. Among these was an allegation that boy friends of young Virden had talked with him over the telephone or had met him several hours after he drove his automobile to Crystal Lake and wrote the farewell note which indicated that he had killed himself because of "excessive worry."

All of the boys have been interviewed by either the sheriff or police chief and the rumors proved to absolutely without foundation, the officers state.

Attendant Uncertain

The attendant at the filling station at the edge of Crystal Lake park near the place where young Virden left his car is not certain regarding the time that he first saw the abandoned automobile, police say. Two farmers living north of the city, however, report that they noticed it parked on the driveway at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. This was an hour and a half after young Virden was last heard from. At 3 o'clock he telephoned to the Merchants' Transfer Co. in this city to give instructions regarding moving some furniture from his former home at Meeker to his new residence on Miami-st. He and his stepmother, Mrs. Glennie Virden, moved from Meeker to this city the day preceding his disappearance.

The theory that young Virden ran away and left the suicide note to cover up his tracks is not supported, apparently, by circumstances connected with his disappearance. He must have been practically without funds, according to his guardian, M. A. Virden of near Meeker, and he was attired in rough clothing, including overalls. A $10 bill, believed to have been the only money in his possession, he left on the seat of his automobile when he abandoned it at the park.

GUARDSMEN GET PAY

Howitzer Co. Men Receive Checks For Service

Members of Howitzer Co., O. N. G., received their regular quarterly pay last night, following drill. The payroll totaled $6070.

The amount of the payroll depends on the number of men taking part in each drill session and Capt. Earl F. Ebert said today that the next amount received would total over $1,000. The increase will be due to the large number of persons now participating in the drills. Next pay day will come in January. The pay last night was almost 100 days late.

Two new members were taken into the company last night, Captain Ebert reported today.

A Parody on Justice.

Mrs. Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie, have been found not guilty of the murder of the New Brunswick choir singer, Mrs. Mills. The indictments against them for the murder of Rev. Mr. Hall, as well as the indictment against Henry De La Bruyere Carpender, have been dismissed. Court and jury alike have acted to remove the cloud which the charges cast over them. The accusations of guilt have been removed or withdrawn and the presumption of their innocence has been established.

But it can not be said that the cloud which the state brought upon itself, by its handling of the case has been dissipated by the verdict of the jury in the trial and the quashing of the indictments. That cloud still exists, and it is beyond the power of the court and jury and the state itself to remove it. The people of the land generally know the facts offered at the trial. It was reported by the press as no murder trial had ever been reported before. Eleven million words were sent out from the telegraph office of the little town which was the scene of the trial. Such unreasonable and uncalled-for publicity was given the matter as has never been accorded any proceedings of the kind in all history, but while there was no occasion for such publicity, the result is that so long as remembrance of the trial lasts, so long will there be a blot upon the justice of New Jersey.

The case made against the three defendants on trial was wholly inadequate to establish a verdict of guilt. In fact, it went to establish the innocence of the accused. But had the case been many times stronger, it is to be questioned if the jury's verdict would not have been the same.

People are much the same the world over; the springs which move humanity are much alike, and the reactions are similar. Any jury or ordinary intelligence, any jury possessed of manly feelings, could not have done other than resent the brutal and cowardly methods practiced by the state, as represented by Mr. Simpson, in his handling of the case. Not only his words, but his manner and his methods were bound to cause resentment and his contemptible slurs upon the widow defendant could neither be forgiven nor overlooked. Seemingly, he was above no method in his attempt to bring reproach and disgrace upon the accused. In the history of all American court annals there never was such a disgusting parody on justice as this Somerville trial.

European Hostility Exaggerated.

There have been so many presentations in type of one side of the picture, that it is a pleasure beyond the ordinary to present the other. Hence it is that we introduce to our readers Dr. Julius Klein, director of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Dr. Klein has a message on the subject of European antagonism toward the United States. We have heard and seen in type many expressions on this subject. We have had the stories of newspaper and magazine writers, the impressions of returning travelers, the views of politicians and prophets—at least, they claimed to be prophets—the reflections of poets and pot-boilers. But Dr. Klein approaches the subject in an entirely different way.

The doctor tells us that the great mass of the people of Europe recognize the enormous and generous services performed by the United States during and since the war. Moreover, he says, Europe realizes that the prosperity of the United States furnishes an economic reservoir for strengthening broken European institutions and that it has enabled us to increase our purchases from Europe at the rate of nearly $100,000,000 annually over the last four years, thus bringing daily returns and daily services to Europe. At any rate, he says, the effects of unfavorable sentiment upon everyday business are susceptible of expert analysis. And then he proceeds to do a little analyzing. This, in itself, should prove something of a relief from the general run of expressions on the subject. Up to Dr. Klein's diagnosis of the situation we have had nothing but ideas, views, impressions, the result of individual incidents rather than the weighing of the general feeling. The doctor bases his statement on figures, on the dollars and cents of our trade abroad. He says:

"A recent first-hand survey by competent expert observers in some twenty-five important foreign commercial centers revealed only one or two isolated instances of trade losses that could be attributed to this supposedly devastating hostility toward all things American. Once more, it would seem that the primary considerations in the mind of the shrewd European consumer are maximum return in quality and service at minimum cost, with nationalistic patriotteering very much of a secondary influence."

In other words, the animosity of Europe toward America and things American is not such as to interfere with the sale of our goods abroad, not our raw materials, but our manufactured goods, and his analysis shows that American manufactures in many lines have attained within the past twelve months such a hold upon the European market as they never had before, and from this he figures that the animosity of which we have heard so much is not nearly so deep or so widespread as we have been led to believe.

And is not this view of the situation far easier to credit than some of these stories of intense hatred of Europe for America and Americans? Human nature is pretty much the same the civilized world over. Bring the matter right home. How many of us buy from those we hate if it is possible to buy from any one else? It isn't done, either here or in Europe.

The facts will probably be found to be that Americans who go into the tough quarters of any European capital and violate the common courtesies which travelers should observe are liable to receive the same treatment foreigners would receive over here were they to become offensive and insulting. But so long as American travelers conduct themselves becomingly, recognizing foreign ways and usages, and do not go out of their way to give offense, they will be treated politely and probably be safer in any city of western Europe than they would be upon the streets of the great cities of their home land.

Secretary of War Davis says the maintenance of the army requires more money every year. Huh. So does the maintenance of about every old thing, unless it be a goat.

We hope there is nothing in the story that the Rev. Billy Sunday will run as an independent candidate for the presidency in the event that Democracy nominates Al. Smith and the Republicans do not nominate a pronounced dry. We would hate to think at this late date that the Rev. Billy would be willing to divide the dry strength and carry aid and comfort to the wets.

Now a well-known dental surgeon tells us that bone-picking, toast-crunching, celery-cracking and similar table exercises work for the preservation of the teeth. Can't somebody, in advancing this great movement to enable the best friends of the stomach to carry on, develop a workable muffler?

Feeding the Birds.

People realize that the birds are their friends, despite the fact that some of the feathered tribe have been greatly maligned. There is evidence of this feeling on every side such mornings as that of yesterday or today when the ground is covered with sleet and ice and everything in the way of food which the birds may ordinarily get is too solidly frozen to be available to the feathered ones. The crumbs and pieces of fat and suet thrown out as well as occasional bits of grain tell of the thoughtfulness of the public.

Not all are thus answering the wants of the birds, of course, but the number throwing out food to the redbirds, jays and sparrows is increasing year by year. There was a time when these thoughtful ones were the exceptions, but they are no more. The outlook is that those who do not thus care for our bird friends will soon be the exceptional ones. Let us hope that such will be the case. There is not a bird known to us of city life which does not pay for its keep in the insect life it destroys. Even the much-abused sparrows prey upon the insect world, as any one who has watched the sparrows must know.

Let us keep throwing out the crumbs and anything else the birds will eat, and when the weather becomes intensely cold let us bear in mind that the birds must have fats to keep them warm.

Changes in Baby's Temperature.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In grown persons the temperature is a pretty reliable index to the state of health. It is not so dependable a sign in children, but, of course, it can not be disregarded.

You see the tissues and body of an infant and very young children are tender, delicate and irritable. Things which mean little or nothing to a strong man, are tremendously important in the first year or two of life.

At this time of life the temperature is a symptom particularly noticeable. In an infant or tiny child it may shoot up on the slightest provocation and from a trifling cause.

A temperature of 103 degrees in an adult is a serious symptom and can not be viewed except with concern. A temperature of 103 degrees in a youngster may mean nothing more than a slight disturbance in the digestive tract, or be simply a symptom of constipation.

An adult may have a chill, followed by a light fever. The baby under similar circumstances is more likely to have a convulsion and then to have the temperature elevated several degrees above normal.

Babies are very sensitive in their little stomachs. A few swallows of bad milk will hardly be noticed by a grown-up, but they may be most disturbing to a baby. There may be restlessness, pain and high fever almost immediately.

The taking of something indigestible, or the rapid swallowing of a glass of milk with consequent clotting of the milk, may show its effects by elevated temperature. Where you and I might have a feeling of discomfort only, the baby may have real sickness.

Not only do we find increase of temperature in the little folks, but we may observe depression of the temperature. This is more important in many ways.

Anything that produces exhaustion and weakness of the child is likely to lower the temperature. Marked depression is a pretty accurate sign that the exhaustion is serious.

Babies sometimes suffer from obstinate vomiting. In spite of every effort the vomiting continues. Or there may be a profuse and continued diarrhea.

Either one of these exhausting conditions may go on to a point where the vitality of the baby is greatly damaged. In every such case the temperature is likely to go down, perhaps to a dangerous degree.

Do not be a slave to your thermometer, but possess yourself of a good one. By this I mean make sure it is accurate in its workings, both high and low. Not every thermometer is dependable, and unless it is accurate you might better throw it out of the window.

Your best friend if you find the child's temperature above or below normal is your family doctor. He will know exactly what to do.—Copyright, 1926.

Vagrant Verse.

ASTOLAT.

When valors burnished cymbals browned with rust
And the bright wine of flattery grew flat,
When no stanch shield could stave the inner thrust,
He sighed, "I shall go back to Astolat!"

Remembering cool hands upon his brow,
Remembering calm lips upon his hair—
That childish kiss, which had outlived, somehow,
The flaming, dooming lips of Guinevere.

The gardens had not changed since he had gone—
Thyme, lupin, gillyflower, while the brake
Was sweet with roses and a martial swan
Pecked its own image in the placid lake.

Astolat was as Astolat has been.
Only one lily missing . . . and yet that
Made it become a place unknown, unseen,
For man may not go back to Astolat.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

J. Z. Miller, Jr., former governor of the Kansas City Federal Reserve bank, is a man whose financial achievements are known far and wide. At least ninety per cent. of young men are interested in making money. A small number, perhaps, but far more than fifty per cent, want to go far in the business world. Mr. Miller, having been over the road, says:

"There are only three sure rules for getting ahead today. They are: concentration of purpose; close application; determination."

Many men approach middle age before they get lined up on even the first of these—concentration of purpose.

Who's Who and Why.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

Eugene Gifford Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, is probably the one man most responsible for the development of that company from a small and comparatively unimportant plant to the second largest commercial steel concern in the world. His life has been devoted to the advancement and prosperity of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

He entered the employ of the company in 1899, shortly after being graduated from Lehigh university. His first work was the operation of an electric crane, but soon afterward, showing a capacity for systematizing the handling of materials, thereby saving a large amount of money for the company, he was given a commission by Charles M. Schwab, then president, to reorganize the Jurgagua Iron company, of Cuba, a subsidiary plant. His rise from that time was rapid.

During the period of the World war his responsibilities were added to. Mr. Grace was made president of the corporation on February 17, 1916, and later, in October, 1917, president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation. During this time he cooperated with the war and navy departments in the productions of cannon, armor-plate, ships and ammunition.

The war ended, he was faced with the problem of replacing the Bethlehem Steel corporation and its subsidiaries on a peace time basis, and he succeeded, for within six years of the signing of the armistice more than ninety per cent. of the company's capacity was devoted to the production of commercial steel products. Under Mr. Grace's presidency, the corporation acquired ownership of the Lackawanna Steel company and the Midvale Steel and Ordance company.

Eugene Grace was born at Goshen, New Jersey, August 27, 1876.

Q. What is the history, briefly, of silk culture in America? F. N.

A. All the early attempts to establish silk culture in American were failures. The first trial was under Cortez in Mexico in 1522. James I was no more successful than Cortez when he attempted in 1609 and 1622 to reinstate the silk worm. Benjamin Franklin and others were engaged in reestablishing the industry at the time the Revolutionary war broke out. A speculative mania swept America in 1838, and as late as 1866 the state of California offered bounties to silk producers but the last serious attempt at such production was in 1926. Reference has been made here, of course, only to "pure silk" and not to any of the artificial silk fabrics which flood the market in many variations.

The number drawn in the first drawing was 258 on July 20, 1917. The number in the second drawing was 246 on June 27, 1918. In the third drawing President Wilson drew the number, which was 322. Tentative plans for the concerts were presented members of the board by Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, president of the Lecture-Recital Club.

While Mrs. Lewis Uhl, president of the federation, together with members of the organization, has been for some time planning for the state convention at which Marion women will be hostesses next May, arrangements will begin to take definite shape after the visit of Dr. Josephine Peirce, of Lima, president of the state federation, Dec. 16. Dr. Peirce will give a talk and present some of her plans at a meeting to be held in the Community Home. Her talk will be followed by a social hour and refreshments.

There will be no house-to-house canvass made by the children, Mrs. McNamara stated, and neither will the seals be placed on sale in the postoffice this year. She reported the sum of $535 received in the mail sale up to last night.

Members of the Wit and Wisdom Club of Waldo, were enrolled in the Federation, and the resignation of Miss Dora Jacobs as music chairman was accepted. The re-appointment of Mrs. George T. Geran on the city health board was unanimously endorsed.

Living

JUST SO!

Loving

"OH, we can't help but be happy!" declared the sweet young bride. "Why, I intend to devote my whole life to taking good care of HIM!"

And the sweet young bride, poor thing, did not even so much as guess that by her own words she gave full promise of making her "HIM" inordinately miserable, foretold the ultimate stranding of the good ship, Matrimony, on the bar of Boredom.

For while man appreciates comfort he detests constriction (it takes the most wily of women never to confound the twain). And while he most ardently desires attention when he's in the mood to woo it, he no less bitterly resents it being thrust upon him at an unwelcome moment.

Breathes there the married male with soul so dead who never to himself—and to the wife of his bosom—hath said:

"Well if ever I'd dreamed that married life would be like this! No wonder so many fellows stay single! Why do you keep at me all the time with your 'do this' to your 'don't do that'? My life still belongs at least in part to me, and I want to live it in my own way—breast the autumn winds overcoatless if I feel so inclined, splash in the puddles sans rubbers if I wish to, puff my pipe in the living room if it strikes my fancy, eat cheese and pretzels before going to bed! I am sick and tired of being kept 'from getting a sore throat,' from 'smoking myself to death,' from 'having indigestion'! I tell you once for all, I want to do what I want to do when I want to!"

OF course, somewhere things may be different. We can only base our conclusions on facts as we find them in our own little corner of the universe. But to the best of our recollection never yet have we encountered a husband who is altogether happy with a "just so" wife.

Incidentally, it seems to us, now that we think upon it, that we have met a wife such specie.

In her house are not too many rooms, but plenty and just the right number of servants to keep them to order. Every servant works on the just-so plan, her every second allotted.

Every chair is arranged just so! Every lamp casts its light just so and exactly as it should be. The pictures on the walls hang just so! The books on the table and the potted plant on tabouret just so! Even the accoutrements of writing desk, ink pot, blotter, pen tray are arranged at angles on the pad just so!

The soup, the fish, the roast, the dessert—each in its appointed course, just so!

This night the opera, that night bridge! Vacation at a smart resort when summer comes!

The right place for everything and everything in its place. Every event scheduled and on time. With his world and his wife just so, what has unfortunate husband left as a fillip to imagination?

Nothing, absolutely.

So husband grows restless, ill at ease; seeks piquancy with which to flavor the sauce of perfection grown stale.

By nature man is a trifle Bolshevistic, somewhat inclined against law and order, infinitely preferring his freedom to being fussed over. And because this is so, he has been known to forswear the just-so help-meet for the let-it-go soul mate.

Too great comfort breeds discontent. The sweet young bride had best take good care of him, but not too good care—had best leave him something to long for.

"Blaze of Glory"

—BY FRED M'ISAAC—

CHAPTER XV

A chauffeur can't kick his master's face and get away with it. Undoubtedly Anderson would have considered it unlawful to fight with a servant but he couldn't fail to resent that kick, and it was why I had resorted to it.

He stumbled forward several feet then turned and, with a bellow, came for me. I was nearly as tall as Anderson but I was twenty pounds heavier. He had been a guard and was a big strong fellow and I soon found out that he was a boxer. I learned, afterward, that he had quite a reputation among amateurs in New York. On the other hand I was in good condition, my experience pulling a dory on the Grand Banks had developed my arms and back so that I was very powerful, and I was animated by a hatred of the fellow of which he was not aware.

I had never done any fighting, and did not know the science of boxing. I ducked a straight left that he shot at me and stepped into a right which doubled me up. He followed with a left uppercut which sent me backward and a right swing knocked me off my pins. He was waiting for me to get up, and a right to the side of my head sent me down again.

Evidently I was in for a beating, since I couldn't use my hands against a skilled ring performer, but we happened to be having a blood fight in private and I saw no reason why I should follow rules made for him. The force of his blows had knocked me down twice, but I wasn't in the least injured or even dazed. He stood poised about three feet away, waiting for me to stand up and get knocked down again. I suddenly launched myself at his knees. It was a sure hard tackle and brought him to the ground with a bang. Holding him in my arms, I rolled over on him and then we indulged in a rough and tumble on the ground, during which I lauded several sledge hammer blows on his face and body which took a lot of pep out of him.

Helma stood watching the fight with a white face but made no sound. She was a Viking's daughter and probably enjoyed the spectacle.

Somehow Anderson wriggled away from me and scrambled to his feet. Having been tackled once, he approached warily, while I stood waiting for him. He launched a left jab and I knew a right to the body would follow. I took the jab which stung me in the jaw, caught his right arm as he buried it almost to the elbow in my stomach, then bent over and wrapped both my arms about his middle. He beat a tatoo of rabbit punches on the back of my neck, but I lifted him high in the air; my arms and back had no trouble with his two hundred pounds. I was only ten feet from the edge of the pond. I ran to it, narrowly escaping serious injury from his kicks, and hurled him into the water. He struck with a terrific splash about five or six feet from shore. Instantly I took Helma by the arm and hastened with her to the pavilion.

The fellow crawled out of the water, bedraggled and sputtering, the fight out of him for the moment at least, and by the time he was ready to resume, we had re-entered the hall. I knew he wouldn't follow us in the waterSoaked condition he was in and the outcome of the fray amused me tremendously.

Helma was in an agony of fear.

"You will be discharged," she said. "It is wonderful of you to fight for me and I am very grateful, but we will both lose our jobs, see if we don't."

"I should worry," I told her. "They can discharge me any time they like. I'm sick of being a chauffeur, but you are perfectly safe. You don't suppose Anderson is going to admit to the Abbotts that he went to a servants' dance, got fresh with their parlormaid and got thrown into a horsepond by their chauffeur. He'll try to get even with me somehow, but he won't dare peep about you. How do I look? Am I all bunged up?"

"You are not bleeding, but you have some cuts on your cheek, and your collar is torn and your clothes are dirty. We shall go home at once."

"Suits me," I grinned. "I don't like dancing anyway."

Helma continued to bewail our bad fortune as we started away in the Ford and I was a bit impatient with her for I was delighted at the treatment I had meted out to Anderson to the extent of being willing to barter the job for the privilege of ruffling him up and ducking him in a dirty little pond like a hound puppy. It was too bad there hadn't been a stone around his neck.

"If you hadn't been idiot enough to go walking with him, it wouldn't have happened." I told her bluntly. "I suppose you had to dance with him if he asked you, but that didn't imply sitting on the bench in the dark and spooning."

"I was not spooning," she said spiritedly. "He was very nice and a gentleman while we danced, a wonderful dancer, too. When he proposed to get a breath of fresh air I didn't think anything about it. Then we sat on the bench for a moment. He tried to kiss me but I would not let him. It was after that he pulled out the flask, took a big drink and tried to make me take one. He was a brute but just the same we shall lose our positions, see"

"There are lots of jobs. You should worry. Did you see me lift him up in the air and throw him into the middle of the pond?"

"How strong you are!" admired Helma, leaning her cheek against my strong shoulders. I wished Rose Abbott could have seen me toss her gentleman friend, but rather than have no audience, I was willing to be admired by Helma.

"Don't you say anything about this," I cautioned her, when we reached the house. "The chances are he will be ashamed to tell about it. I bet he doesn't even tell that chap who was with him in the hall how it happened or who did it."

"And we shall go dancing again, yes?" said Helma.

"We shall go dancing again, no," I retorted. "Look at the mess we got into tonight."

Helma sniffled and then ran into the house. I took the car to the garage in the village and walked back to my quarters. It was fortunate I hadn't sneaked one of the family cars for my jaunt to Brownville since that would have given Anderson something to report.

Just as I was entering the garage, I heard a motorcoming up the drive, so I ran upstairs to my living quarters in order that I might not meet my victim who was probably arriving. He had taken out the runabout, of course with permission; ran it into the car house and went about his business. I decided to go to bed.

It was then that an alarming phase of the situation occurred to me, the danger of his making Rose fall in love with him. The man was absolutely no good, a bounder, a rotter. To take advantage of his position in the house as he had done when he tried to make poor little Helma, impressed as she was by his importance, as a guest, drink out of his flask against her will, was the sort of thing that no man with a vestige of decency would do.

I didn't care what his social position or his health or his influence might be, he wasn't fit to marry a respectable girl, so it was up to me to see that he didn't do any such thing—a tall order. While I was thinking of ways and means I dropped into unconsciousness, and the next thing I knew the alarm clock was announcing stridently that it was seven, thirty, getting up time.

When I ran downstairs and out of the garage I was surprised and pleased to see G. Burton Anderson, in a golfing suit, smoking a cigarette, sitting on a wooden horse which stood against the building, and waiting for me.

WEST POINT CADET CHARMS PRINCESS ON HER STAY HERE

Cadet Lieut. William J. Glasgow, an honor man of West Point is the only person in the United States to have had a state dinner all for himself with Princess Ileana of Roumania. He met the princess first at a dance in the military academy, having been her escort. Returning, the Princess and her mother stood in the rain to see the cadets drill. The Princess remembered the cadet, a Washington man—remembered him through her weeks of tour. For before she sailed, she invited him to dinner. He couldn't leave West Point. So the dinner was arranged there.

Quicksands

BY ADELE GARRISON

of Love

AFTER his comment that he was glad my connection with the theater had not robbed me of my love for the country, Hugh Grantland did not speak again until we had reached the end of Riverside Drive and turned into Broadway. I was equally silent for fear of saying something which should rouse the queer jealousy which he evidently was feeling because of my work for Philip Verlteen. I had the psychic little conviction that despite his promise I should hear more from him concerning my new work and especially concerning my employer. But I meant to postpone that hour as long as possible.

When he next spoke, however, his voice was matter of fact, but I fancied I detected in it a tenseness which betrayed how rigidly he was holding himself in check.

"I have been told that the new Bronx Parkway is very beautiful," he said.

An Ideal Luncheon Nook

"Oh, it is lovely," I acquiesced, glad to have some thing about which I could enthusiastically agree with him.

"Would you like to drive up that way and scout around for a good luncheon place?" he asked.

"I can't think of anything more fascinating," I rejoined, and the next two hours were ones of delight to me as we drove along one of the most fascinating roads in the world with the Bronx river, humblest yet loveliest of streams, glinting at the side of the road.

After rejecting several which did not appeal to us, we finally found a house set back among trees with rustic tables upon the lawn. The swinging sign was lettered simply, "Hasbroucks," and there was no attempt at display. But everything about it was charming, and showed subtly that the people who kept it had a pride in their name and in the service they gave.

"How do you like this" Hugh asked, as we approached it, slowing his car down.

"Very much indeed," I returned, "especially because I can't detect a single 'Ye,' or 'Olde' about it, and I don't believe there's a hint of a 'gift' or antique 'shoppe' on the place."

He laughed perfunctorily as he had spoken every word since I asked him not to discuss my work with Philip Verlteen any further.

Alone at Last

"Shall we try our luck here, then?" he asked.

"I do not believe we could find anything better anywhere," and, turning the car into the driveway, we were soon seated at one of the rustic tables and being served with a luncheon which did not need the sauce of our drive-induced hunger to be pronounced unusual in excellence.

When we had finished, the rotund proprietor of the inn told us of an exceedingly pretty walk and view which formed part of his extensive grounds. Walking a few steps from the house, we suddenly found ourself in a grove which had been kept almost primeval in its wildness.

In reality, we were but a few steps from the world of bustle and motor cars in any part of the grove, at any time, but when we had descended to the bank of a little stream and seated ourselves upon a rustic bench there, we might have been upon a lonely mountain top for any indication of intrusion upon our solitude.

take S.S.S. and be PROUD of a CLEAR SKIN

DOES YOUR MIRROR reveal a soft, clear, ruddy skin, free from imperfections, that is such a joy to every woman? Or are you embarrassed with blemishes, pimples, little eruptions, acne, blackheads and other unsightly and disfiguring handicaps?

Your skin is in reality your passport, and if your mirror reveals a blemished, unsightly complexion, it is time to begin at once to correct this annoying condition. When the blood becomes infected with humors or impurities, the circulation cannot supply rich nutrition to the skin, but instead it deposits the acrid impurities with which it is contaminated into the sensitive fibres and tissues. This causes irritation or inflammation which splits or breaks the outer cuticle, while the tissues beneath ulcerate, become inflamed, break out into pimples, and cause other unsightly irritations.

Just as Long as the Blood Remains Pure, the Skin Will Be Free From Eruptions

But when the blood becomes affected with humors, its nourishing and healthful properties are lost, and its humor-laden condition causes inflammation of the delicate tissue and fibres of the pores and glands. You have but to realize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving the health, and that the source of all skin disorders is in the blood. Remove the cause, which is not in the skin itself, and therefore cannot be reached by a treatment that is strictly local, but is deep down in the blood supply.

S.S.S. Has a Proved Record Over 100 Years as the World's Best Blood Medicine

Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it clears the system and makes those so-called skin disorder impossible to exist. S.S.S. contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. It is also a remarkable builder of firm flesh which is also important to beauty. It will fill out your hollow cheeks, put the "ruby" of health in your cheeks and the sparkle in your eyes. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been beautifying complexions and giving women physical charm. That is why S.S.S. is accepted as the greatest of all blood cleansers and body builders. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores. The larger size bottle is more economical. Start taking S.S.S. today. Its marvelous results will amaze you!

SUCCESS MARKS GATHERING OF LEGIONNAIRES

Practically Every Post in Northwest Ohio Represented at Kenton Meet

Kenton, Dec. 7—Legionnaires—more than two hundred and fifty of them representing practically every post in the Northwest Ohio district—participated in the inter-post banquet and rally in Elks' home Monday night.

Although Howard Savage, Chicago, national commander, and Brig. Gen. McQuigg, Cleveland, immediate past commander, were unable to attend, Herbert R. Mooney, Woodsville, state commander J. J. Saslavsky, Columbus, state adjutant, and Frazier Reams, Toledo, Northwest district committeeman, appeared on the program together with other prominent legion leaders of Ohio.

Throughout, the addresses carried appeals for increased membership, that Ohio might make a strong showing in membership competition with Iowa, and for renewed consecration to the activities of the organization in child welfare work, community betterment and in aiding the disabled veterans.

Others who were presented during the evening by Carl W. Smith, former Kenton post commander and toastmaster, were: Joseph V. Patterson, Findlay, former Northwest district committeeman, Pete DeWeese, Lima, grand chemist of the Ohio 40 et 8, Hayden Edward, Columbus, past president of the Franklin county Legion council, and Gen. Chauncb Baker, Columbus, past departmental commander. William Leoffert, commander of Kenton post and one of the leading sponsors of the district rally, opened the program.

The annual conference of post commanders and adjutants will be held in Columbus, Jan. 16, according to Commander Mooney. Howard Savage will be the principal speaker. Annual "Legion-air" night is to be observed March 15 when a special legion program is to broadcast from Station WTAM, Cleveland. Commander Savage will also speak then.

One of the outstanding features on the program last evening was the program of special music and stunts given by the Ohio Northern University orchestra under the directions of Mike Mazzulla, band director. Clever comedy skits were given by Archie Schreiber, Cleveland, dancer, and David DeVere Beletsky, Niles, impersonator. These two are premier entertainers and have appeared on Keith's vaudeville in Cleveland. The musicians were brought here through the courtesy of the Ada Legion post, headed by Dale Carey.

Gossip and Guesses in the World of Sport

By Pat Murphy

BOSTON, the city of beans and culture, gave to America her first world's heavyweight champion in the person of John L. Sullivan. Since the days of the "Boston strong boy," Boston has furnished several fighters who made good in the lighter classes, but no real champions among the larger boys. Now, however, the Massachusetts city is in the game with two of the most "logical" of all the contenders for the title now held by Gene Tunney. Jack Sharkey, one of the Boston entries, won fame and a place in the front rank of the challengers when he removed from the heavyweight ranks the menace of Harry Wills. The other, Jimmy Maloney, is plodding along meeting the leading fighters now invading this country, and beating them. Two of his recent victories were over Arthur McKoth, the highly touted Italian, and Franz Diener, the German who came over here to whip the world.

WILLIE HOPPE, who has held the three-cushion billiard championship off and on since the days when he was referred as a "boy wonder" has threatened to quit the game. Willie claims that every time he takes the lead in a match that someone slashes the cloth on the table, necessitating the application of a new and lively cloth. His announcement came during his recent match in New York against Gus Copolos of Detroit. Hoppe discovered at the start of the ninth round of his 12-block match that the table was sporting a new green baize cover. The manager of the alleys informed the champion that some unidentified person had slashed the cloth with a knife after the finish of the eighth round. This is Hoppe's second experience of this kind. In the spring of 1925 the same stunt was pulled during his match with Bob Cannefax in Chicago.

Hoppe claims that in the three-cushion game a fast cloth is necessary for "trick" shots and, as he plays nothing but straight billiards and depends upon his skill with the cue, without the aid of any trickery, he will quit the three-cushion game and in the future confine his play to the balkline.

CHARLIE LEHMAN, the well-known Milwaukee light heavyweight wrestler, was in Marion for a few hours Monday. Charlie is booked for a match at Marysville Saturday, and would like to show in Marion. He is a tough boy for anyone in the 175-pound ranks, and has beaten most of the near-champions of the class. He thinks that the only reason he is not the leader of the division is the fact that he has never been matched with the champion.

GEORGE LITTLE, former assistant to Fielding H. Yost at Michigan, who is now head coach at Wisconsin university, has been severely criticized for refusing to schedule Marquette for a game. The latter college has applied for a game each season for the last several years, but Wisconsin has turned a deaf ear. And the state university cannot be blamed. Wisconsin would have everything to lose and nothing to gain by placing Marquette on the schedule. Marquette has had strong teams, while little has had trouble getting the caliber of men needed to make championship aggregations. If Marquette were to defeat Wisconsin consistently, the state team would have to take second place. This condition now prevails in Indiana, where the state university must play second fiddle to Notre Dame when state championships are reckoned.

An idea of what such a condition would mean to Wisconsin can be obtained by stretching the imagination sufficiently to put Ohio Wesleyan or Ohio university in the position of beating Ohio state year after year.

Marquette would lose no more prestige by a defeat at the hands of Wisconsin that Wesleyan loses when State wins a game from the Bishops. But imagine State losing to one of the Ohio colleges year after year and you can appreciate Little's reason for refusing to schedule Marquette.

Arrange 1927 Grid Schedules for Ohio Colleges

Athletic Directors and Officials Hold Meeting at Columbus Yesterday

Director L. W. St. John Interprets Basketball Rules, New Members Added to Ohio Football Officials' Association, and Other Business Enacted During Sessions

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB
Sports Editor, The Star.

After hours of hectic lobbying and bartering, Ohio athletic directors and football coaches announced late yesterday the 1927 football schedule of Ohio Conference schools. The menu for next year was forthcoming after long deliberation in the Chittenden Hotel.

Society in the Ohio Athletic Conference is becoming more and more drawn into three distinct groups—if indications at the meeting yesterday may serve as a judge. The three divisions include the Buckeye Athletic Association, the northeastern group, and those schools not claiming membership in the first two exclusive sets.

The conference, however, is just as strong as ever, according to officials and the trend toward certain divisions has not effected the organization as a whole.

Immediately following the arranging of the football schedules for the coming season, coaches and directors were placed under L. W. St. John, athletic director of Ohio State, who gave his interpretation of basketball rules for the benefit of coaches and officials.

Discusses Cage Rules

Questions taken up especially by St. John concerned the rules regarding blocking, charging, and interfering. Over half the meeting was devoted to the discussion of just what charging is and when it should be called a foul. Blocking and interfering were discussed in conjunction with charging.

In conclusion, Director St. John declared that it was his belief that coaches and players of rival quintets were becoming more and more friendly and that an amiable feeling prevailed among the greater share of high schools and Ohio Conference teams and officials.

Following a dinner of managers and officials at the Chittenden Hotel, another meeting of coaches and officials was held at the Fort Hayes Hotel.

New Association Members

Three new members were taken into the Ohio Football Officials Association during the meeting, bringing the number of active members to 44 persons. All officers of the association were re-elected, Dr. F. A. Lambert, Ohio State, being chosen as president; Russel Finsterwald of Athens, vice president, and E. W. Emswiler, secretary-treasure.

Members of the Ohio Football Officials Association will sponsor a move to bring together all officials association of the country and hope to stage a convention with each association sending delegates to form a National Officials Association.

The election of officers to the association brought the meetings of the day to a close and each coach journeyed homeward having in his possession the football schedule for the next year. The schedules are as follows:

KENYON
Sept. 24—Kent Normal at Gambier.
Oct. 1—Oberlin at Oberlin.
Oct. 8—Muskingum at Gambier.
Oct. 15—Rochester at Rochester.
Oct. 22—Western Reserve at Cleveland.

THREE TIED IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

WESLEYAN TEAM SET FOR SHOVEL BATTLE TONIGHT

Will Form Tough Opposition for Local Outfit

The curtain will ring up at 8:15 tonight on the initial battle of the season for the Marion Steam Shovel independent basketball team.

For their opponents, the Shovel cagers have booked Ohio Wesleyan, the first college quintet to appear on a local floor this season and one of the toughest in the state of Ohio.

With a week of practice behind them, Ohio Wesleyan basketeers are ready for the opening tilt tonight. Coach Ray Detrick has high hopes for his proteges this season. He has four of last year's regulars back, including Berno and Lamme, forwards, and Holwir and Blickle, guards. He will probably use Abbey, elongated sophomore, at center to fill the vacancy caused by graduation last June of Bill Turney, captain of last year's five.

The game tonight will have much bearing on the lineup that Coach Detrick will use in his game with Ohio State at Columbus Saturday, and every man will be fighting for a position.

Manager Bacon's men also are all set for the setto with Ohio Wesleyan.

Without a doubt, the Steam Shovel outfit will present one of the classiest appearing aggregations ever to make a debut on a local court. Practice sessions during the last two weeks have prepared the Shovels for the opening battle on the new Shovel gym.

Coach Baldy Compton of Harding High and Manager Francis W. Bacon of the Shovels, will present a combination hard to beat on the defensive. Bub Wilson and Dewey Bohyer will find a warm place in the hearts of Marion basketball fans by their excellent basket shooting and floor work. In the forward positions, Pugh, giant center, is also expected to display his ability as a basketeer tonight.

The main go is scheduled to start promptly at 8:15, tonight, on the new Steam Shovel gymnasium, W. Center-st.

A premilinary contest between the machinists and office force of the Steam Shovel will serve as a starter of festivities at 7:15.

Dunlap, of Ohio Wesleyan, will referee the games.

BUSINESS WOMEN WILL BOWL MEN

First of Series of Games at Y. M. C. A. Wednesday

Five members of the Business Women's Club will bowl a picked team from the National and Industrial Leagues Wednesday night, Ed Meredith, bowling director of the Y. M. C. A. announced today.

The Business Women's team is composed of Blum, Slagle, Hamner, Wheaton and Porter, while the men's crew includes Whipps, Cookston, Hamilton, Wheeler and Fahey. The game is the first of a series to be played between the two teams and others will follow weekly during the bowling season.

The same plan was followed last year and the matches created a great amount of interest among bowling fans. Games are called at 7:15 Wednesday night.

TEAMS COME FROM BEHIND

One of the unusual features of the football season just closed was the number of instances in which teams came from behind to win or at least tie opponents which had secured good leads in the early periods.

SHARKEY TO MEET TUNNEY, SEPT. 15

New York, Dec. 7—Tex Rickard today made public a schedule of heavyweight bouts for which he has signed Jack Sharkey, Boston championship contender, the final match being with Gene Tunney for the title on Sept. 15. The latter, however, is contingent upon Sharkey surviving the series of tests.

The first on February 7 will be with the winner of the Jim Maloney-Harry Persson bout to be held at the Garden on Dec. 20, the second Sharkey engagement has been set for March 11 with Paolinal, the Botsonian's rival. The third will be with Paul Berlenbach at the Yankee Stadium on June 9.

GENERAL OFFICE WINS FIRST TILT IN SHOVEL GROUP

Office Quintet Defeats Engineers in Battle on Gym Floor

The General Office quintet of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. celebrated the opening of the Shovel League last night and inaugurated basketball on the new Steam Shovel gym by defeating the Engineers 22 to 12. Only one game was played last night, the other skirmish between Electricians and Apprentices being postponed until Friday.

A fair-sized crowd witnessed the season opener, in which O'Connell, guard for General Office, was the star performer. O'Connell helped his teammates in scoring with two field goals and also displayed a great guard game.

The first half of the initial battle ended with the office force leading 11 to 8 and chances still seemed bright for the Engineers. But in the final half, neither team played up to the standard set in the first period and the Engineers dropped behind several more points before the end of the tilt.

Slagle and Pennisten performed in a creditable manner for the Engineers while Thorgeson also exhibited some real basketball ability. P. Worden, Williams and Cofman of the Office attracted attention.

DUGAN, WADDELL TAKE GAMES IN NATIONAL GROUP

Win from Marion Buicks and Richmans Last Night

While Smart & Waddell bowlers were taking three from Richmans last night in the tenth round of the National Bowling League, Jim Dugan's crew was winning two over the Bulcks.

Dugans took the first game by a margin of eight points and dropped the second contest to the Buicks by a large margin. Shriver's score of 234 pins in the final fray won the third game for Dugans.

Shriver was high scorer for the Dugan rollers with the 234 mark. His total for the three games was 607 plus. Waters, with 243 points, led the Buicks in scoring. His total of 540 was also high.

Smart & Waddell rollers had little difficulty in taking the measure of Richmans, winning three consecutive games. Heffelfinger with 227 points, was high man for Smart & Waddell, while W. Baldauf led Richmans with 221.

HOWITZERS TAKE ANOTHER VICTORY

Take Marion Business College into Camp by Low Score

Howitzer Company cagers again crashed through with a victory when they defeated Marion Business College 14 to 4 last night on the armory floor, following Howitzer drill.

The contest was a hectic affair and was far from interesting, although the first half ended 8 to 4 in favor of Howitzers. The Marion Business College quintet could not connect with the basket under any circumstances while Howitzer had little more success.

Kern dropped in the lone field goal credited to the Collegians while Gray and Belt were each chalked up with a free throw for the other two points. Boulton accounted for six of the gunsmen's counters, dropping in three field goals, Kellogg bagged two field goals.

THREE QUINTETS OCCUPY LEADING LEAGUE POSITION

Service, Commercial and C., D. & M. Win Second Round

Railway Service cagers, C., D. & M. and Commercial Steel are tied for first place in the Marion Industrial Basketball League race as a result of the second round of games staged last night in the Star Auditorium before a large crowd of spectators.

The C., D. & M. quintet experienced no difficulty in stepping over the Osgood five for a 25 to 12 victory. Railway Service took a tight game from the Huber Manufacturing Co. five, 31 to 19, and Commercial Steel won its first game of the season by defeating Fairfield Engineers 23 to 10.

Kunkler Wins Sweater

Kunkler of Railway Service won the Bradley sweater offered to the highest scorer of the round by Jim Dugan. Kunkler dropped in five field goals and two free throws for the highest number of points recorded by any single player during the evening. The fishing reel offered last week by Thibaut and Mantz Hardware Co. was presented to Erled Phillians of the C., D. & M. quintet last night.

The battle of the second round was enacted by the scrappy Huber aggregation and Railway Service crew. Railway Service cagers were expected to win the fray by a large comfortable score but met the surprise of their lives when the fast stepping outfit from Huber swung into action.

The score was large enough but only the excellent basket shooting of K. O. Kunkler at center saved the day for the Service basketeers when the energetic Huberites began functioning. With a few more games under their belts, the Huber men will make some of the more highly rated teams step out to keep their place in the league.

"Where Good Clothes Cost Less"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

It isn't so long until Christmas, and I need a dollar toardst it if I never get any closer. It is now so dark in the mornings that I have to let Jubilee down in the dark, and if it was him letting me down instead of me letting him down I would be afraid something would grab me. But he a dog, hasn't got as much sense as a cow, unlessen it is the Lost Bag of Tripe or something, and I have to light the lantern to milk by. But the bunch has to get up early too, so most of them are in the barn before I get done milking.

I told my father this morning it would be a good idee for me to sleep till breakfast time, and milk the dumbed brutes after breakfast, and he said it would be a better idee for me to keep right on like I was doing. I just looked at him and didn't say what I thought. A fella don't want to start the day with a lickin'. Then he said he expected I would milk them after breakfast and before supper, and after a while I would want to give them both milkings at once. And I said that would be a good idee. Then he looked at me and did not say anything, but the reason he did not say anything was not the same reason I did not say anything.

I said I wished I had of been a cave man, and my mother asted me why, and I said I would of tamed my cows so they could be milked by daylight; I said the cows in their times was so wild they had to sneak up on them in the dark, and people have been doing it ever since. Then my father told me to go light on the butter because it costed money and to let my vitals stop my mouth, so I did.

My grandfather is lame from falling on the sidewalk and my aunt is lame from Annabelle Lee pushing her through the cellar door. I did not see either one of them happen.

We went down on the pond before school and there is a path of rough ice across it like it had been plowed, where the Lost Bag of Tripe slode across it when we told him not to. We took him by the feet and drug him the length of the rough place on his bussel. When we got to school he asted the teacher if he might stand up because something had happened to him. He thought she would ast him what and he would tell on us. But she thought it was a licking and told him it would be good for him if he had to stand up oftener.

Nothing happened today. I didn't earn anything.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Baby Bunty hopped very slowly down the stairs in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. So slowly did the little rabbit girl hop that Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy squeaked to her:

"Hurry, Bunty dear, or you will be late for school."

"I'm not going to school today!" said Bunty in a sort of grunting voice, which wasn't a bit like her own.

"Not going to school!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "Why, what's the matter? Jingle and Jangle and Tingle and Tangle and Bumper and Stumper—all the other little rabbits have gone—forty-leven of them. Why don't you go to school and be the forty-twelfth, Bunty?"

"'Cause," was all Baby Bunty answered. "I'm not going to school today at all! I'm never going to school again! Boo, hoo!" And she began to cry.

Now this was so unlike Baby Bunty that Uncle Wiggily, coming down just then to go adventuring, could hardly believe his ears.

"Are you ill, Bunty, that you do not want to go to school?" asked the bunny rabbit gentleman.

"No, I—I—I'm not azackly ill," sobbed Bunty hiding her face in the tails of Uncle Wiggily's coat. "But I haven't got any beads to wear around my neck, and all the other girls have and I don't want to go to school without some beads. Oh, dear! I want a string of beads!"

"Silly!" Nurse Jane started to say, but Uncle Wiggily held up his paw, patted the little rabbit child on her head and whispered:

"Poor little Bunty. There, now, don't cry any more. Hop along to school and when you come out at noon I will have some beads for you."

"Oh, will you, really?" exclaimed Bunty, smiling and drying her tears. "Oh, how lovely! Now, I'll go to school! What kind of beads will you get me, Uncle Wiggily Daddicums?"

"Oh, you'll see at noon time," was all Mr. Longears would say.

And when Bunty had hopped to school, hurrying so she wouldn't be late, Nurse Jane said:

"You shouldn't humor that child so much."

"Poor little Baby Bunty!" murmured Uncle Wiggily. "She is an orphan rabbit you know, and if I don't humor her nobody will. Now to get her a string of beads."

"What kind are you going to give her?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Well, I've got to think about that," answered Mr. Longears. And he was still thinking as he hopped through the woods. Then, all of a sudden, he saw, in a hollow under a big stump, lying on a bed of dried leaves, a number of big, brown horse chestnuts, or buckeyes as the boys in Ohio call them.

"The very thing for Bunty's beads!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I will make her a necklace of horse chestnuts." No sooner said than done. In his pocket Uncle Wiggily had a sharp nail and a piece of string. He made holes in the brown nuts and put them on a string. Then he had beads for Bunty.

When she came out of school at noon, Uncle Wiggily met her and gave her the horse chestnut necklace. And I wish you could have seen Bunty's eyes sparkle with delight as she put her queer beads around her neck.

"I never can thank you enough!" she said as she walked along beside Uncle Wiggily, letting the other bunnies run on ahead.

"I am glad you like them," said Mr. Longears. And just then, from a bush beside the path, jumped the Bob Cat, who snarled:

"I am glad I like ears, 'cause I'm going to have yours, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh! Oh! cried Baby Bunty. "Throw snowballs at him!" and she and Uncle

Bunty's eyes sparkled with delight.

Wiggily began pelting the bad chap with snowballs.

"Pooh! I'm not afraid of soft snowballs!" howled the Bob Cat.

"Let's put hard horsechestnuts from my necklace inside the snowballs and pelt the Bob Cat with them!" she whispered. And bravely breaking her string of beads, she took some of the nuts, gave Uncle Wiggily some and these were packed inside snowballs. And when the Bob Cat felt the chestnut snowballs on his nose he howled differently.

"Wowch! Ouch! Smouch!" he yelled and away he ran.

"Oh, but you spoiled your beads," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I don't care! I saved your ears," said the orphan rabbit. But Mr. Longears got more horse chestnuts and made Bunty another necklace so all was well. And if jack knife doesn't take a shingle off the roof to build a boat for the goldfish to sail in, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the teasel.

A 7 room house located at 510 Davids-st. Has gas, electricity, well and cistern, city water and sewer in yard. Lot 45x160. Has a 3 car garage, entrance from alley in rear. Has been newly painted. There are three rooms upstairs and attic. Four rooms and enclosed back porch down. Small cemented cellar. On paved street. Owner has been asking $3,800 for property but needs quick money and has cut price to $3,600. Mortgage is $2,400, hence $600 buys equity. Who ever buys this property is assured an actual profit for from $300 to $1,000 on same this spring when the new factory is located on Mound-st. This is within a few blocks of the Steam Shovel. Now who gets this house?

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS HAS EFFECT ON MARKET

President's Views Coincide with Those of Wall Street

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks steady; industrial stocks firm; foreign bonds strong; call money 3 per cent; grain steady; copper steady; oil irregular; cotton fairly steady; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron firm; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, Dec. 7—President Coolidge's message to congress today coincided with the Wall-st view of tax reduction, railroad consolidation, tariff on importations, banking, and the general state of prosperity in the country.

As a stock market factor, it was extremely favorable and supplied the motive for the buying of a considerable volume of stocks and bonds.

On the whole, the trend of stock prices was upward, though there were a number of weak spots in the speculative list. Whether these were the cause or the effect of professional selling, it was not always possible to determine, but the marked strength of the sugar stocks, the motors, the tobaccos and some of the specialties was related directly to specific developments announced officially during the day.

Buying of the sugar stocks, for example, was based on the knowledge of early and liberal sugar prices as a result of the cane to date.

E. L. DOHENY ILL, ADJOURN TRIAL FOR 24 HOURS

Oil Operator Confined to Bed Following Operation on Infected Arm

Washington, Dec. 7—The Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial was adjourned for 24 hours this morning when Justice A. A. Hoehling learned that E. L. Doheny, the millionaire oil operator, had been confined to his bed following a second operation on the infected arm which he has been carrying in a sling for the last several days.

Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, asked the court to proceed with only one defendant, former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, in court. Hoehling, however, in consideration of the various legal points at issue, thought an adjournment over the day would be desirable while he had an opportunity to examine the law as to whether a defendant's presence was mandatory.

John McCormack, the internationally known tenor, will take the witness stand voluntarily at the Fall-Doheny trial and testify to the good character of the millionaire oil operator.

Behind him will come a number of oil experts, called by the defense in an effort to convince the jury that the oil leases former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall gave Doheny were good leases from every viewpoint. The defense counsel may be blocked in this as Justice A. A. Hoehling already has sustained a prosecution objection to questioning along this line.

Considerable speculation is being caused by the persistent report that Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel, plans to put all three of the Dohenys on the stand to testify in their own defense. Mrs. Doheny kept the torn-off signature of the note for $100,000 Doheny loaned Fall, and the son carried the money to Washington in a leather satchel.

It is not understood, however, that Fall will subject himself to cross-examination.

Another "surprise witness" is thought to be Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy. He was reported to have been seen around the office building quite of the defense yesterday.

CONDUCTOR RELEASED ON BLOCKING CHARGE

Mayor Dismisses Case of Erie Man After Hearing His Explanation

C. J. Wise, Erie freight conductor, arrested Saturday afternoon after his train is alleged to have stood on the N. State-st crossing and blocked traffic for almost three-quarters of an hour, was released by Mayor Earl M. Hazen, yesterday afternoon, when he explained that the blockade was unavoidable.

Conductor Wise stated that he sent his train forward after the signal tower east of Greenwood-st had let him through, indicating that he would have a clear track. After the front part of the train, consisting of 95 cars, had passed State-st, it was stopped by a signal at the Union Station tower, another train having blocked the Hocking Valley crossing.

The mayor decided that it would be unfair to fine Conductor Wise and accordingly dismissed the case after having communication with local Erie officials in regard to future operation of the signal system. These officials said that while emergencies resulting in crossing blockades might develop in the future, every possible effort will be used to prevent it.

The state law stipulates that no train shall block a street crossing longer than five minutes.

FUGITIVE RUM RUNNER IN HANDS OF OFFICIALS

Kidnaped Dry Law Enforcers Notify State Department of Action

New Orleans, Dec. 7—V. D. Jackson, dry chief for the gulf zone, today notified the State Department of the safe arrival in Puerto, Mexico, of the rum runner Arsene J., which broke arrest a week ago and "kidnaped" two prohibition officials aboard.

Assistant Administrator J. E. Matthews and Coast Guardsman Handley are safe and apparently have been in control of the runner since she eluded her captors off Southwest Pass. Matthews wired that the schooner was turned over to customs officials in Puerto.

Matthews' cablegram read:

"Arrived here Monday at 10 a. m. with Arsene J. and crew. Handley with me. Customs officer has schooner in charge. Crew of schooner under arrest. Cable instructions care Acting American Consul J. Starks."

Jackson said he would ask the advice of the State Department regarding whether the Arsene J. would be brought back to this port.

Although the Osgood team put up a great fight against the stellar C., D. & M. five, it was completely outclassed and lost a hard-fought fracas by a 25 to 12 score. Parr was the outstanding Osgood player while Phillians shone for the C., D. & M. with five field goals and a free throw.

The Fairfield Engineers were also outclassed by the outfit placed on the floor by the Commercial Steel Co. They had little chance and scored only three field goals and four free throws during the skirmish. Fisher starred for the Engineers with Penry and Applegett holding honors among the Commercial players.

FIVE DIE IN BLAST

Five Thousand Pounds of Powder Explode; 12 Men Hurt

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 6—Five thousand pounds of smokeless powder exploded in the Carney's Point, N. J., plant of the Du Pont Co. yesterday killing five men.

Twelve workmen were injured, most of them slightly. The explosion was heard over an area of 10 square miles. The blast occurred in a dry and glazing house where the finishing processes were being applied to gunpowder. Fire followed the explosion. The entire personnel of the Carney's Point plant turned out to fight it after the bodies of the victims were recovered.

Most happiness is best perceived in retrospect.

SLAVE OWNERS

Americans are the most economical slave owners in the world. They make electricity work for them at an estimated cost of one cent per man hour. Every in human slavery days the cost of a man's labor was more than a cent an hour though often it was not worth that much.
